MORTARBOARD

PUBLISHED BY THE

JUNIOR CLASS

OF

BARNARD

COLLEGE

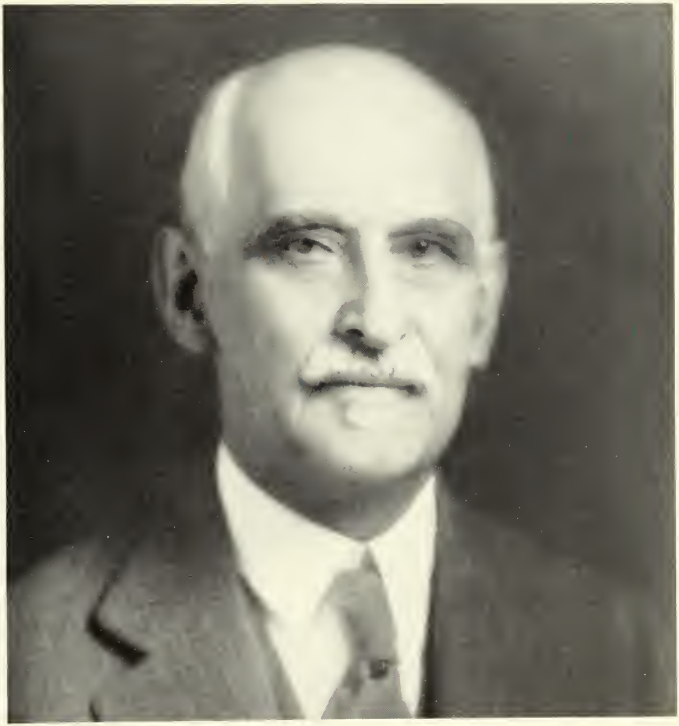
DEDICATION

To

Edward Delavan Perry,

we, the students of Barnard College, dedicate our first all-college yearbook in deep appreciation of his helpful and sympathetic association with Greek Games • His thoughtfulness and enthusiasm have long contributed to that spirit which makes the Games a living part of Barnard



FOREWORD

MORTARBOARD has always been essentially a class yearbook, compiled and edited by members of the Junior Class. This year all classes have shared in its production and although there is still much room for improvement and expansion under this new policy, we feel that a step has been taken in the right direction. Lack of funds has been a serious impediment to the fulfillment of our plans. It is to be hoped that measures, now under discussion, for the removal of such a handicap will be put into effect next year.

To the class of 1934 especially, and to future classes, we wish success in carrying out this new policy.

To the college as a whole we extend our sincere thanks and appreciation for its co-operation and interest in this, the first all-college Mortarboard.

Every student at Barnard College is a member of the Undergraduate Association. This self-governing body is organized under three boards: Student Council, the executive; Representative Assembly, the legislative; and Honor Board, the judiciary. Student Council has the added function of furthering co-operation between students, faculty, and alumnae.

The Honor System was originally adopted by the Undergraduate Association at the suggestion of the students themselves. Its aims are set forth in the Honor Code, which all students of Barnard are asked to sign as a pledge to themselves and to the Honor Board that they not only understand the significance of the Code but will live up to its ideals throughout their college life. Any infringement of the Code is dealt with by the Honor Board, composed of two members from each class and the Chairman. Loyalty and co-operation on the part of the student body is essential to the Board's service to the College.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES IN BROOKS AND HEWITT HALLS

The social life in Brooks and Hewitt Halls is planned with a dual purpose: to offer residents the same opportunity for entertaining as they would have if they were living at home; and to provide them with every possible occasion to become more intimately acquainted with fellow-students, members of the faculty, and visitors to the college. Early in the fall Miss Abbott invited groups of Freshmen and transfers to meet their classmates. The Junior-Freshman and Sophomore-Senior teas enabled professors and students to rediscover each other.

The Faculty Reception on October tenth was an important night for the new students and Seniors who acted as hostesses to the professors. Pearls of wisdom were replaced by sparkling gems of conversation to the delight of all.

Supper dances, held on November fifteenth and March fifth were a charming innovation in the social calendar. The cinema version of college life became excitingly true on December fifth and April tenth in the formal dormitory dances and in the tea dances on the following afternoons.

Small departmental dinners during the year did much to make the faculty-student relationships more informal.

A calendar of the dormitory functions necessarily omits the daily activities of residents. It is from the constant contacts with the girls at the dinner table, or in their rooms, that lasting friendships grow.

In Memoriam

Bernice Estelle Markowitz

LONGING

God, take me back to my mountains,
Or take away these reminders of them:

The trees in the distance that look enough
Like hills
To bring to my mind the mountains,
But are not high enough
To satisfy
The hungry ache of my heart:
The sea whose sound as it
Pounds on the shore
Is like the sound of the wind
Roaring through the pines and birches in a
Mountain storm;
The haze in the distance
Where the sea with outstretched arms grasps hold of heaven
That looks like the haze of a distant mountain I have seen
From the summit of a mountain.

God, take me back to my mountains!

—Bernice E. Markowitz

Class History

1933

O, I am not a Byron, but I'll venture
To cast my verse in gay Don Juan's mold,
And if you should feel any discontent, you're
Welcome to your opinion, so I hold.
But pray reserve your praises or your censure
Until this little history is told,
Then, if you're not inclined to blow a trumpet
I guess you just will have to like or lump it!

There were three hundred maidens, once a time,
As shy and shining an array conceivable;
From all four corners came they, (without rhyme,
But hardly without reason). Unbelievable,
Their glorious perfection, hearts sublime
Oppressed with heavy Weltschmerz unrelievable.
Perhaps they had an inkling, poor young duffers,
Of what a college Freshman really suffers.

On the initial day they saw example
Of how the powers that be will oft submit
Defenseless women to great shame, and trample
Their modesty into the dirt—to wit,
The maidens were presented with a sample
Of generous angel-robe, which did not fit,
I guess the powers forgot one thing,—that, namely,
These garments were quite shockingly un-seam-ly.

And, lo a tall attendant drifted in
Declaiming upon vitamins and calories,
And swooped upon those maidens with a pin,
(No one could guess the point of this). Disease
They did discuss, and troubles of the skin,
And what their individual parent's salaries,
And then some weighty matters did entail
Conjecture on a rather minor scale.

But soon a day arrived when by some miracle
All small distresses were dissolved in air,
And so they went their ways, still half hysterical,
And turned attention to another care
A little more aesthetic and more lyrical,
What you, perhaps, might term a foreign affair,
We'll tell you, though we hate to mention names.
It was the festival yclept Greek Games.

Now it takes lots of practise to surpass
The Sophomores, and so, despite their labors
In which, with courage, each ambitious lass
Attempted to outdo ambitious neighbors
In role of horse or human hoop—alas,
I guess they did not meet with Helios' favors.
Though, to complete this over-loaded rhyme
We'll let you know, they won the second time.

These dainty damsels had a grave suspicion
Which it is most important to relate.
They pondered on their close fenced-in condition
And wondered who had given them the gate.
And so to save themselves from dread perdition,
They all renounced conditions celibate,
By holding Frosh and Sophomore hops—oh marry—
To which they summoned Tom and Dick and Harry.

It seems events may always be narrated
Much faster than they really can occur,
And thus, in seven verses, we've related
A two-years' tale. The rest is all a blur
Until we reach a period designated
JUNIOR, creating such a mighty stir
As hardly can be dreamed of by small chits
Like Frosh, who never "prommed" down at the Ritz.

Now I maintain the deities were bent
In favor of these maidens. When they tendered
A plea for privilege to represent
An epic drama, nurtured and engendered
By their own genius, elsewhere and unpent
By Brinkerhoffian walls; the boon was rendered.
And so, complete with heroine and villain,
Their show was duly given at MacMillan.

There's very little to be said in closing,
Though graduation is to be deplored—
But if you're curious, (I'm just supposing)
You'll find the rest of it in MORTARBOARD.
To tell the truth, I'm weary of composing,
How much of a success I may have scored
Will be dependent on your kind concession.
Please don't be influenced by the Depression.

Junior Prom

Junior Prom, greatest of all college social affairs, was held on February 20, 1932, in the Main Ballroom of the Ritz Carlton Hotel, with all the glamour that this event traditionally brings with it. An atmosphere of friendly gaiety and gracious hospitality pervaded the spacious ballroom. Joe Moss and his Meyer Davis Orchestra supplied music quite in keeping with the spirit of the evening.

As the couples passed in a Grand March through the main door of the ballroom they received their respective favors from attractive green and white boxes. The girls were presented with combination cigarette cases and compacts, cleverly made to look like small books, while the men's favors were cigarette lighters ornamented with the Barnard Seal.

The guests of the class were Dr. and Mrs. George Walker Mullins, Miss Mabel Foote Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Savelle, Miss Barbara Kruger, Dr. Arthur Gayer, and Miss Frances Smith, the Undergraduate President.

The highest praise for the complete success of the Prom is due Miss Jean Waterman and her committee consisting of the Misses Madlyn Millner, Florence Pearl, Mildred Pearson, Kathleen Roderick, and Gena Tenney, ex-officio.

The Junior Show presented in McMillan Theatre, April 1, 1932, by the Class of '33 took the form of a musical play, unique in its blending of realism, wit, and ideal purport. The first scene effects a little human drama, without music. Much of the following scene becomes an intensification of the realistic by burlesque to reflect the modern spirit. But in the midst of blatant cries from Football Boys, Hot Dog Salesmen, and the flippant kick of Gorgeous Girls, suddenly the atmosphere is cleared and the whole air stirs with distant sound. The Chant of the Ancients! The gentle tribe, weaving in and out in flowing robes, lifts the scene to a realm of poesy and fancy, and for the lovers in the drama, a land which expresses their life fully for the first time. Simplicity and serenity seem to stretch toward them and implant an everlasting happiness on all individuals who seek.

GREEK GAMES

J.GIESEY

Entrance

In honor of Artemis, two neighboring cities, Halae and Brauron, have set a day for a contest in dance, music, lyrics, and athletics. On that day are heard the voices of the happy crowds, singing a joyous marching song as they tread the sunlit road. Huntsmen appear with their bows, sacred to the goddess of the chase. Bands of maidens and youths follow, laughing and dancing, and gather at the steps of the temple. A group of girls, chosen from the purest maidens of the cities, approach the altar through the crowd. Their chant to Artemis is taken up by the people of the cities, who crowd before the temple to ask the blessing of the goddess. Two priestesses appear, who light the flame on the altar as they pray. The maidens follow the priestesses into the temple to worship while their townsmen contest their prowess. A rhapsode steps from the crowd and recites to the townspeople the winning lyric to Artemis. Then the crowd, resuming the joyous marching song, moves to its respective positions to await the events.

On the banks of a rippling river, a group of frolicsome nymphs are playing with Arethusa, one of Artemis' favorite maidens. The River God, Alpheus, seeing Arethusa, leaps to the bank, and begs her to come away with him to the sea. She, charmed by his beauty and grace, is being led away, when the nymphs, seeing their playmate disappear, cry to Artemis for help. Artemis, who has been watching from a distant hill, denounces the River God and turns Arethusa into a fountain. The River God, bewildered, seeking wildly for Arethusa, finally sees her in the fountain. With a joyous rush the river sweeps the fountain up, and bears it proudly on toward the sea.

Exultant after a glorious hunt, the maidens of Artemis are led in by Callisto, their favorite. The pulse of the hunt still surges through their veins, and their play is vibrant with laughing gaiety. The goddess enters, with such sorrow reflected on her face that Callisto instinctively shrinks away. The sense of her displeasure pervades the group and draws several of the maidens to Artemis, who tells them that Callisto has broken her vows of chastity

The intimate joy of the hunt has fled. Callisto's comrades gradually turn away from her. She implores forgiveness, but Artemis refuses. Callisto turns away and stumbles blindly from the presence of her mistress. Then Artemis again claims the maidens' allegiance, and leads them away in their former joyous mood.

Greek Games

By Professor Helen H. Parkhurst

The Greek Games of Barnard College, conforming sufficiently to established pattern to yield a little of the special and peculiar effect of a ritual, year by year, follow a very beautiful and gracious tradition. The same events recur: invocations and choral dances, athletic contests, hoop-rolling, torch-racing and the promenade of chariots; and without these invariable elements the celebration would not be the familiar and moving thing that we find it to be. But despite this traditionalism, with each fresh enactment never are costumes, colours, lyrics, dance and allegory repetitions of those that went before. Here custom, without forfeiture of a kind of sanctity attaching to all perpetuations, is left free to receive each year a new embodiment according to the individual talents, technique and inventiveness of the contending Sophomore and Freshman classes.

This time dedicated to Artemis, the Games gave scope for a variety of dramatic effects, including several commendable impersonations: the sylph-like Callisto of Patricia Purvis; the austere virginal goddess of Helen Walker; Katherine Bush's appealing Alpheus, and Gena Tenney's stately Arethusa. Very certainly one of the high moments of the performance came with the culmination of the Alpheus-Arethusa story when the foam-flecked blue waters of the fountain were engulfed by the green river's powerful torrent and carried triumphantly away to the sea. In conception, rendering, rhythmic movement, and musical accompaniment this dance by the 1933 chorus was an exceedingly effective performance.

The other chief triumph was that of 1934 to whom belonged the black and gold chariot with its superb charioteer and dark-maned, high-stepping horses. Dark chariot, shining reins, tossing heads of restless steeds and impassioned sonorous voice of charioteer all contributed to a very powerful and noble effect.

But other triumphs, other beauties there were, both individual and collective, including those of the massing and dispersal of dancing throngs, the lighting of the fire on the altar, the poses and movements of the athletes, and the bestowal at last of the green crowns of victory. Between the first entrance of the contestants and their dense massing at the close, a wide gamut of moods was made visible and audible: rapture, despair, wistfulness, melancholy, eagerness, anger, gaiety, and triumph; all were rendered by gesture, attitude, look or speech, all were enhanced by the rich melodiousness of the spoken Greek. All too brief were the athletic contests intervening between the earlier narrative and symbolic phases of the performance and the perennially exciting torch-race at the last. For it is a good and pleasant thing to watch this competition in discus throwing and in hurdling of bare-footed maidens participating in games in honour of a Greek goddess, and helping to revive for a brief hour the legendary golden age of Greece. But all of it is good: good for those who watch and for those who participate. A splendid chance it offers to each class that enters Barnard College for a concerted enterprise in free invention. It means for all who have a share in it an exercise of imagination and emotions. It means the perpetuation of a lovely and highly significant tradition.

Clara E. Siggard

Winning Lyric

TO THE MOON GODDESS

Demons have sucked the light from ont the skies
And breathed a frost of mist into a veil
Of darkened dust. Somewhere a night-bird cries,
From some black pool there grows its mournful wail—
Then lo! a sudden whispered chant, "All Hail!"

Rise slowly, pale and pulsing disk of light,
Poised in the silver cup of her frail palm
Whose lustre casts a glow upon the night,
A shaft of pale flame across the calm,
To thee, immortal Artemis, this psalm—

We have been far too human to behold
With naked eyes thy splendor in the day,
One daring boy, one Actaeon, made bold
By all devouring passion, gazed thy way,
And he was vanquished. But to us who pray

Each night a vision of thy glory streams
Through black infinities, upon earth's bed,
That image that we dare to draw in dreams,
Sheds forth its glow. We bow our wondering head
And worship that we see and are not dead.

—Mildred Barish, 1933

OTHER ACTIVITIES

College Assemblies

ADALINE HEFFELFINGER, Chairman

The Assembly Committee, under the leadership of Professor Wilhelm Braun and with the advice of student leaders as well as faculty members, has attempted to present as many phases of college interest as possible in the Tuesday programs.

Foreign affairs claimed interest generally in the fall of 1931. President Nicholas Murray Butler spoke of the growing interdependence of the modern world and of the need for mutual confidence between nations. Madeleine Gilmore and Adaline Heffelfinger, delegates to the Geneva School of International Studies, stressed their belief in a liberal nationalism. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick described pacifists as hard-headed realists trying to catch up with new international facts, and asked our aid in securing world-wide disarmament.

Turning to the aesthetic interests of the college; John Erskine, President of the Juilliard School of Music, prophesied that music will have a place in the average person's intellectual life. At the Christmas assembly carols were sung by the Barnard Glee Club under the direction of Lowell P. Beveridge.

Other assemblies included: an address by President H. S. Coffin of Union Theological Seminary, an address by Spencer Miller, Director of the Workers' Education Bureau, and a discussion of the race problem by two negroes, Walter White, Director of the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Alain Locke, Professor of Philosophy at Howard University.

College Teas

KATHLEEN RODERICK, Chairman

KATHERINE CROOK — JEAN WATERMAN

KATHERINE REEVE — KATHLEEN MCGLINCHY

Every Wednesday afternoon, from four to five-thirty, an air of informal sociability pervades the College Parlor. Everyone may come to college teas. Some drop in after working on tomes in the library, some from classes, and some for a few moments of relaxation after an active hour in the gymnasium.

This year a new feature was introduced at some of the teas, in the form of entertainment such as piano recitals and singing.

By inviting the whole college to these teas, a fine feeling of sociability and good-fellowship is created between the day students, dormitory girls, and members of the faculty.

Freshman Day

The Class of 1935 was welcomed to college by Acting-Dean Mullins at the Freshman Luncheon, September 19. Other faculty speakers were: Professor Gregory, Dr. Alsop, Chaplain Knox, and Miss Weeks.

The first Freshman Class Meeting followed. Frances Smith, Undergraduate President, introduced Olga Maurer, representing Honor Board; Helen Appell, President of the Athletic Association; and the three Class Presidents, Christianna Furse, 1932, Gena Tenney, 1933, and Margaret Gristede, 1934.

The meeting adjourned to the Gymnasium where Edith Tomkins led in college singing. An exhibition of Greek Games took place, introduced by Dorothy Crook, Chairman of last year's Games.

Freshman Day ended with Tea on the North Terrace.

Jean Waterman, '33, assisted by a large committee from all three classes, was in charge of the entire program for the Freshmen.

The Evolution of the Sophomore-Freshman Party

In a 1907 issue of Bulletin, back in the days before there was a Students' Mail and when the Cox Sons and Vining ad was in advance of the styles, we find the first mention of "the Mysteries." It is a short notice to the effect that after their two weeks of servitude to the Sophomores, the Freshmen had been subjected to an afternoon of doing "whatever the ingenuity of the Sophomores might devise," and thenceforth were to be considered as social equals. Those were the days when Mysteries were at the height of their bumptiousness. One account describes with relish the incident of twenty Freshmen who became entangled in their "lead straps" and all fell downstairs together, landing in a heap at the bottom. Equally conducive to a jolly good time was the tying of a rat trap full of live specimens to the chandelier of the Freshman study.

By 1911, however, hazing had been "abolished," though in that year Freshmen were forbidden the use of the elevator and compelled to wear green tags. Apparently Mysteries had been criticized as putting class spirit above college spirit, for in that year also an allegorical play was presented showing College Spirit fighting with and conquering Class Spirit. In addition, the Mysteries book was presented to the Freshmen by the Sophomores—to be opened at the Freshman Class Luncheon. The Mysteries book is a locked book in which the Sophomores have for years written satires on the professors and college life in general. Each year it has been handed down to the Freshmen and each year the Freshmen have been disappointed with its contents. Last year the book was given over into the hands of the Alumnae Association, to be kept by it as a relic of the past.

But we are getting ahead of our story. Following every Mysteries celebration from 1911 to 1929, letters and editorials appeared in Bulletin. Some expressed a desire for a dignified, ritualized initiation, others renounced Mysteries as being childish, still others thought the affair good fun and praised the "sky-larking" attitude it encouraged. In pretty much the same general form Mysteries continued on up through the years. The accepted procedure was for the Sophomores to raid the first Freshman class meeting, announcing to them the specifications for their "servitude" during the next two weeks. There followed the two weeks of Freshman humility, the climax coming with Mysteries day, a time of violent and open conflict, ending with a play or skit and the presentation of the Mysteries book. The play was never a success. As one of the editorials so aptly put it, "no two classes who have fought all afternoon are in a condition to appreciate an idealistic Greek Masque depicting love and co-operation." So the show was changed to the familiar satire on the inexperience of the Freshman, and in 1914 the upperclassmen were invited to join the festivities which were followed by a dignified torchlight ceremony on the terrace, at which the Mysteries book was presented to the Freshmen.

Because of its inherent beauty and value, this phase of Mysteries has persisted to the present day, the one change being that a symbolical lighted torch has taken the place of the Mysteries book. Now, instead of an afternoon of fighting, followed by an unwanted play, there is a friendly party; last year, a baby party, this year, a barn dance. The fundamental purpose is still the same: to have an informal good time together. Perhaps it is a sign that we are growing old and prim, but for a real good time, we would rather have a barn dance than present each other with rats.

I. S. S.

International Student Service held its annual conference last September at Mt. Holyoke College—for the first time in the United States. It was the conference's purpose to strengthen the links between the students of America and those of other lands, to clarify the guiding principles of higher education in the various countries, and to gain closer collaboration between the universities of the world with regard to the social, international, and racial problems they are facing. Student and faculty delegates from universities throughout Europe and Asia, as well as North and South America, attended the sessions.

A wealth of informed and critical opinion was brought forward in background addresses analyzing American and European civilization and explaining differing conceptions of the university. In separate commission groups, university problems such as student self-help and "intellectual unemployment" were discussed. Student responsibility in the present international crisis was stressed. The opportunity to exchange views with European and Asiatic students proved extremely stimulating.

Barnard already appreciates the "international" viewpoint. We are well fitted to co-operate with I. S. S. in its task of "building the university into the life of the world."

The Barnard delegate was Ruth Anderson, '33.

The widespread movement to stimulate student opinion favorable to disarmament gave rise to a Model Disarmament Conference at Bucknell University on December fourth and fifth. The delegates from Barnard were Katherine Reeve and Frances Smith.

A Student Fellowship Drive is held each year to maintain two international fellowships of a thousand dollars each. This fund is raised by the students through voluntary contributions.

A committee, consisting of members of the faculty and the president of the Undergraduate Association, selects a group of candidates from among the members of the graduating class. From this group the college at large selects the girl on whom to confer the fellowship. It is to be used for graduate study at any foreign university which the student desires to attend.

There was some talk this year of discontinuing the fellowship or of using the money for some other, more pressing need. It was decided, however, that the very fact of economic and psychological upheaval in the world today makes better international understanding imperative, and in its furtherance the contacts between students of different countries are tremendously important.

The Barnard fellow this year is Anne Gary, who is studying at Oxford University. Frances Smith is the fellow for the coming year.

N. S. F. A.

The National Students' Federation of America held its annual congress at Toledo, Ohio, during Christmas vacation. The purpose of the organization is to "develop an intelligent student opinion on questions of national and international importance." Since approximately three hundred colleges were represented, smaller groups were formed in order that real progress in student problems might be made among homogeneous colleges.

It was at the women's college discussion group that the Barnard delegate found problems similar to those at Barnard and new ideas for the solution of these problems. At the general meetings of the Congress, student opinion was sounded on one hundred vital student issues.

The contact with the delegates from other sections of the country was invaluable, for it made clear the provincialism that American students must overcome in order to take their stand as a unit. If it were for nothing other than this, the N. S. F. A. would justify its existence. Continued membership in this organization seems almost imperative, for N. S. F. A. has more to offer and Barnard has more to give.

The Barnard delegate was Dorothy Crook, '33.

Junior Month

Junior Month was instituted for the purpose of bringing to the public a more complete realization of the significance of social work, its general aims, and, more specifically, the nature of the problems with which it has to deal.

The month of July is devoted to extending this knowledge through the effort of college Juniors. One member of the Junior Class is chosen from the following colleges: Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Connecticut, Elmira, Goucher, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Swarthmore, Vassar, Wellesley, and Wells. Barnard's representative for July, 1931, was Dorothy Smith. The institution so composed is sponsored by the Charity Organization Society under Miss Clare M. Tousley, Assistant Director.

The first two weeks are spent in studying the theory of social work, with visits to various social agencies. Then, these theories are put into practice when opportunity is given for doing actual case work. Each student attempts to solve the problems of a particular family.

As a consequence of her experiences during Junior Month, a student is able to contribute to the better understanding of social work.

Silver Bay

In an ideal setting among the hills looking out over Lake George, the annual Silver Bay Student Conference met again last June. Delegates from all the Eastern women's colleges gathered—with them nineteen from Barnard—to discuss with picked leaders international, racial, social, religious, and personal issues of the day.

The first evening the delegates were greeted by the student leaders, and visited the "campus," the little memorial chapel, the rustic cabins, the boathouse, tennis courts, and auditorium. The next day was devoted to orientation, choosing interest groups, learning to know the leaders who were to guide them. Then came eight days packed to the nights with keen lectures and heated discussions, with songs and pseudo-dramatics, with hikes and feverish afternoons of swimming and tennis.

It is difficult to catch in words the significance of Silver Bay. Each participant is enriched, her outlook broadened, her will-to-do strengthened. But there is something still deeper, an intangible something, engendered by the idealism, the enthusiasm, the experience of being a part of a great gathering of young people all seeking a basis for intelligent student thought. Barnard appreciates the privilege of sharing in Silver Bay.

Barnard Quarterly is the official literary magazine of the college and in this capacity it endeavors to give full expression to the best undergraduate writing. In order that the best may be selected and that all contributors may have helpful criticism, the staff of Barnard Quarterly is chosen from the college at large, only after an extensive and careful competitive examination in writing and criticism.

Wigs and Cues, the dramatic organization of Barnard College, has for its aim and purpose, the promotion of a high standard of college dramatics in choice of plays, acting, producing and dramatic experiment; it desires to give those interested in the drama an opportunity of gaining knowledge and experience in the dramatic arts, and to recognize and encourage student composition of plays.

Students are elected to membership on the basis of dramatic ability shown in try-out plays given under the auspices of Wigs and Cues, or in any of the other dramatic activities presented at college.

This year Wigs and Cues presented as its fall production "The Castle Spectre" by M. G. Lewis. This was one of the earliest melodramas, first presented in 1797. Wigs and Cues, under the direction of Miss Agnes Morgan, performed the play in the authentic eighteenth century manner, including the special music by Michael Kelly.

During the Spring semester a varied program was given of several less elaborate yet significant plays in afternoon performances for the college at large.

The aim of the Spanish Club of Barnard College is to bring together those interested in Spanish life and culture. At a series of teas held by the club, prominent speakers, from Spain and Latin America address the Circulo. The opening tea of the year was given in honor of new members and the speaker was Francine Alessi, '30, holder of the Spanish Scholarship for 1930-1931, who told of her recent experiences as a student in Spain.

An annual play and dance is also given to help raise money for this annual scholarship which enables a Barnard graduate to study in Spain for a year.

Semi-annual bridges, Spanish exhibits, and other informal gatherings complete the varied activities of El Circulo Hispano.

Il Circolo Italiano

Alice Haines	President
Anne D'Avella	Vice-President
Virginia Conforte	Secretary
Anna Sardi	Treasurer
Alida Fortier	Social Chairman

The Italian Club has manifested as its aim the bringing within reach of all those interested a knowledge of the life and culture of Italy. The opening tea of the year was given in honor of Signora Prezzolini, wife of Professor Prezzolini, director of the Casa Italiana, the center of Italian activities at the University. Later in the Fall the college at large was entertained with a marionette show. At the annual Christmas party, the class in Italian Renaissance literature staged the "Orfeo" of Poliziano, one of the most characteristic writers of the fifteenth century.

The program for the Spring term included several teas, the showing of a travelogue at the Casa Italiana, and a concert of Italian Renaissance music.

Classical Club

Alice Burnham	President
Evelyn Raskin	Secretary
Florence Pearl	Treasurer

The Classical Club has the distinction of being the oldest club at Barnard College. It is proud to include in its membership not only undergraduates but also many alumnae and members of the faculty. The aim of the club is to offer to those interested in Ancient Greece and Rome an opportunity to broaden their knowledge of the life, literature, and art of these civilizations. Throughout the year, the club welcomes as its guests and speakers men and women distinguished in the field of classical antiquity.

Deutscher Kreis

Irmgard Aue	President
Marjorie Mueller	Vice-President
Inge Gorholt	Secretary
Meta Glasser	Treasurer

Barnard students interested in the German language, literature, and customs are invited to join the Deutscher Kreis. Since its formal institution in 1924, the Kreis has been benefited by a fund given by the late Mr. Edward D. Adams to the German department, providing for the Adam's prize and "such extra-curricular activities as will tend to bring German life and civilization closer to the appreciation of American students and will further understanding and good will between the youth of both countries."

The programs of the Deutscher Kreis are varied and designed to stimulate interest in both artistic and practical fields. New features are introduced whenever possible. Last year the Kreis presented Bruno Franck's "Ein Sturm in Wasserglas" in the Brinckerhoff Theatre. The success of this production encouraged members to make plans for a similar event in the coming year.

Traditional in the program of the Deutscher Kreis is the German Christmas Party which is given every year.

Episcopal Club

Gertrude Gordon	President
Nancy Hunter	Vice-President
Dorothy Roe	Secretary
Mildred Wells	Treasurer
Elizabeth Simpson	Social Chairman
Dorothy Atlee	Poster Chairman

The Episcopal Club, which has been meeting for some time as a group, received its club charter this year from Student Council. It hopes to become a permanent organization at Barnard in which Episcopal students may find religious stimulation, constructive work, and congenial friends.

In the past year the club has sent delegates to student conferences and intercollegiate diocesan meetings. At Christmas some social work was undertaken. From time to time interesting speakers have been heard, although the main activity of the Episcopal Club has been the weekly Thursday meetings. The members attend Chapel in a body and then return to Barnard Hall for lunch at the club table. These "Thursday Hours" have been a success and the Episcopal Club hopes to make them a Barnard tradition.

Glee Club

Martha Maack	President
Margaret Dalglish	Secretary
Doris Smith	Business Manager
Alice Canoune	Librarian
Adaline Heffelfinger	Publicity Manager

The Glee Club has fifty members and is under the direction of Mr. Lowell P. Beveridge, director of choral and church music at Barnard and Columbia. Last year the club initiated outside concerts which were so successful that several "tours" are scheduled for this year.

The first concert this semester was held in the College Parlor on November 11th, with the assistance of Miss Gabrielle Pessl, Viennese harpsichordist, and the Columbia String Ensemble. The program was entirely Elizabethan. In December, the annual concert with dancing, a special feature this year, was held at the Barbizon Club. At the Christmas Assembly every year carols are sung by the club. Among the events planned for the future are the concerts at the Spence School, the North Hudson College Club at Woodcliff, N. J., and a modern music concert. The club has had a full and successful year which has aided greatly in establishing its prestige.

International Club

Mathilde Camacho	President
Marianne Von Stielberg . . .	Secretary
Jean Giesey	Treasurer

The International Club was founded for the purpose of promoting the spread of international ideals. The club strengthens relationships between foreign and American students. Its membership includes representatives of a number of nationalities: French, Spanish, German, Russian, English, Swiss, Chinese, Japanese, Italian, Lithuanian, Filipino, and American. Founded in 1928 by a group of foreign students, headed by Irene Huber, exchange student from Switzerland, the club now plans an extensive yearly program. Most of the meetings are informal, for better acquainting the members with the customs of other countries, their arts, music, and dances. Matters of political importance during the year were discussed by outside speakers, from India, South America, and Germany. Debates are held, as well, between club members, and lantern-slide lectures serve to bring peoples of different countries into closer contact.

Menorah

Libbie E. Dunn	President
Beatrice Serge	Vice-President
Martha Lowenstein	Secretary
Edythe Arbus	Treasurer
Naomi Kaplan	Publicity Manager

Barnard Menorah studies Jewish life and thought with special emphasis on problems pertaining to Jewish culture throughout the world. It also attempts to aid the Freshman in her orientation to college life. It is a non-sectarian organization and as such invites the membership from the college at large.

In the past year, at its tri-weekly meetings the club has entertained as its guest speakers such men as Professor Horace Friess, Dr. Mordecai Kaplan, Professor William Montague, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, in whose honor a luncheon was given. The lectures delivered by these men constituted a series on religion as it is related to our modern life.

Besides the cultural program, there is a varied social program including several teas, a luncheon, and evening parties.

Newman Club

Marye F. Le Vine	President
Florence Dickenson	Vice-President
Marguerite Dressner	Secretary
Mary McPike	Treasurer
Helen Phelps	Delegate to Province
Alberta Galbina	Delegate to Province

The Newman Club is a Catholic organization whose primary purpose is to unite Catholic students in secular colleges and universities intellectually, socially, and religiously. The Barnard Newman Club is a member of the New York Province and also of the International Federation of College Catholic Clubs. A convention of the twenty-three clubs of the New York Province is held yearly. Barnard was represented last July by Marye Le Vine. The club has at its disposal Newman Hall, a center for Catholic students which is conveniently located at 115th Street. Here the members have the use of a well-equipped library, lounge, reception hall, and chapel.

The program of the Newman Club is widely diversified. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of the month. Father Ford, the chaplain, gives a series of talks on religious and timely topics, and prominent speakers also address the groups. Besides the cultural program, the social program includes tea-dances, bridges, and a formal reception.

Social Science Forum

Roberta Meritzer	Chairman
Madeleine Gilmore	Vice-Chairman
Adaline Heffelfinger	Secretary-Treasurer
Katherine Reeve	Publicity Manager
Dr. Jane Perry Clark	Faculty Adviser

Social Science Forum is an organization for students interested in national and international problems. It sponsors speakers of authority on these questions. Furthermore, it has frequent meetings in which students take an active part. Members are prepared to discuss the designated problem. Sometimes individual students present reports and answer the questions raised by the club members.

Social Science Forum is affiliated with the International Clubs of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. It has a shelf of its own in the Barnard library where students may delve for information on international problems. It is hoped that through individual research and active participation in the informal discussions, as well as by hearing experienced speakers, students will develop a well-informed attitude toward questions of current interest with a view to becoming good citizens.

La Société Française

Lucienne H. Cougnenc	President
Jeanne Ossent	Vice-President and Social Chairman
Beatrice Serge	Secretary
Alice Fisher	Treasurer
Catharine Manson	Publicity Manager

La Société Française was founded in 1900 as an organization for the furthering of interest in French literature, art, music, and all other subjects relating to France.

Bi-weekly luncheons are held to give members practice in general French conversation. Of the eight teas given throughout the year, one is devoted to the presentation of a play, one to the singing of sixteenth century songs, and another to Christmas Carols. The remainder of the teas are held in honor of eminent visitors and speakers.

The outstanding event of the year is a Soiréé at which a modern French play is interpreted; dancing follows the performance which is attended by the college at large. The proceeds of this play and dance as well as those of the semi-annual bridge are used to augment the fund which La Société Française is endeavoring to raise to provide for a scholarship enabling a Barnard graduate to study in France for a year.

A. A. is organized in such a way that it may, like Aristotle's ideal state, attain the "highest good for the individual." It sponsors only intermural competition, and aims to have a game for every girl, and every girl in a game. Every girl in college is a member of the Athletic Association, though the A. A. Board, working with the Physical Education faculty, is the nucleus of the organization. The Board represents a variety of activities besides the regular organized sports. The new Health Program is a challenge to all, and everyone may share the fun at camp. The widespread interest in all phases of A. A. at Barnard should insure the persistence of fine ideals and attitudes toward health and recreation after college.

Barnard Camp

Every camp week-end has its long-remembered pleasures. The Fall and Spring barbecues are as merry and as popular as a royal Greenwood feast. All the traditional camp sports are in full swing then, as they are throughout the seasons. During the year many different groups enjoy their class week-ends and the open week-ends. Others reserve private ones.

Camp belongs to the whole college, though it is supported by the Athletic Association. There is a Camp Chairman, a Faculty Adviser, and two committee members from each class.

All who have been to camp want to go again. There are some things about it that are unforgettable—the sharpest of winter days, bright figures dotting the frozen lake, hot tea and cinnamon toast gratefully consumed beside the blazing log fire—or perhaps just shuffling through the dusty leaves in the haze of early morning when the air is heavy with the odor of grapes.

Playday

Playday was held on October 22, this year, the first day of Play Week. For many days beforehand intriguing, lumpy packages had been seen about A. A. Room. Sometimes a bright little ball or the string of a Yo-Yo would be revealed. Anticipation was keen. An irresistible poster had announced the supper to be held after the fun. At four o'clock on the appointed day scores of girls assembled. Teams were formed and hilarious group games were enjoyed. Then everyone went out of doors where the groups progressed from one activity to another. Greek Games hooprollers revealed great transfer of training when they encountered the gayly-colored little hoops in the relay. Those with superior lung capacity succeeded in breaking the most unresponsive balloons. Giggling was found to be the greatest handicap in the potato races. Amidst the other noises, shouts of approval for well-placed ping pong balls could be distinguished. Jacks and Mumblety-peg claimed their usual devotees. Shrieks from the South field announced the Freshmen's game of Six Passes. When darkness and cold were no longer to be defied, folk-dancing and a Faculty-Student volley ball game in the gym were welcomed with shouts of glee. The Faculty triumphed. At six the picnic supper was served in the Faculty lunch room. Barnard had forgotten its cares and reveled in play for one whole afternoon.

A. A. Banquet

May, 1931

The Athletic Association Banquet held last May in the gym, was, as always, a red letter event in the Social calendar. It was the privilege of the college to have as a guest, Miss Amelia Earhart.

Between the courses a rendering of the Mary Wigman Wiggle and several dances afforded entertainment. Those who have offices on the second floor, Barnard Hall, were surprised to see amazing likenesses of themselves in the humorous skit, "Freshman Final," presented by the Freshmen waitresses.

Marjorie Bahouth was the charming toastmistress. Barnardites listened eagerly as Miss Earhart spoke of woman's opportunities in aviation, and described some of her own experiences. Miss Earhart's thrilling talk was not the only one enjoyed during the evening; Gertrude Wylie, A. A. President, and Helen Appell, newly elected President for the coming year, both gave short addresses. Doctor Alsop spoke briefly in her inimitably humorous style.

Miss Wayman presented the first award, the Distinguished Service Medal, to Marjorie Bahouth. Miss Tuzo announced the winners of Swimming awards. The remaining athletic awards were presented by Gertrude Wylie and Helen Appell.

Those who received Senior awards were:

Class A	Class B	Class C
none	H. Formwalt	A. Dietrich
	P. Wilson	D. Wendell
	G. Wylie
	H. Bailey
	F. Ginsberg
	O. Kallos

A. A. Harvest Hop

Pumpkins, corn stalks, and streamers in Autumn colors transformed the gym into a perfect setting for a Harvest Hop. The committee, under the very capable leadership of Edith Tomkins, had worked and planned for weeks to achieve the unusual beauty of the scene. Gold and brown tones were carried out in the very attractive modernistic programs of suede paper.

The guests of honor included Miss Wayman, Miss Weeks, Miss Kruger, and Dr. Smith.

Harvest Hop proved to be one of the best attended and most successful of Barnard dances.

Physical Education at Barnard

Barnard is a leader in the working out of the new ideal of education. This ideal places athletics on a sane, intelligent, and healthful basis. Love of play is an inherent quality in human nature, but the growth of the attitude "play for play's sake" has been very slow. Man has been content so long to cheer from the side lines, that the newer ideas of participation, keener enjoyment, and attainment of physical fitness for all, have taken many years to develop.

Women's colleges seem to have taken the lead in abolishing the old emphasis on perfecting a machine-like varsity to bring home laurels to the Alma Mater. In 1925 Barnard abolished all intercollegiate competition. It was a great stride forward. Almost all of the prominent women's colleges agree that continued intercollegiate competition is detrimental to the health of the individual, to the ideal of play for all, and to academic activities.

Men's colleges, too, are appreciating the fact that athletics should be a vital part of the normal, well-rounded life, rather than strained competition disassociated from other activities. President Butler, in his recent report, discussed Columbia's new athletics policy of incorporating athletics solely as a student activity conducted by the university. He said "Athletics are hereafter to be treated as part of the undergraduate's normal, well-rounded activity, and not looked upon as something wholly unrelated and foreign to the educational process through which he is passing during four years of college life. The play instinct is powerful among men, and is something to be reckoned with in an intelligently directed academic or social system."

At Barnard, the new system of group requirements in physical education and the Health Program show the great interest in the needs of the individual. The division of the activities into dancing, swimming, team games, and individual sports and games gives the student a broad field. But since one must take a certain number of credits in each, or reach average ability to attain senior exemption, a fair amount of skill must be attained. It is noticeable that there is considerable emphasis on swimming and individual sports, which carry over to after-college days.

The number of people participating in each activity reveals the interest of students in gaining skill in a variety of sports. It is also evident that more can enjoy team games, since there are not the limitations fixed by intercollegiate competition.

The Health Program this year was planned to make everyone health-conscious, to help good habits of health to become so firmly established that they are part of one's daily life. The most concentrated work is being done in the freshman class, by means of the syllabus, health slips, and through physical education classes. Pertinent posters appearing throughout the year keep health habits in one's mind, even though a Posture Contest or Health Assembly comes but once during the semester.

Barnard has been most fortunate in having a leader of such vision as Professor Wayman at the head of the Physical Education Department. It is largely because of her ideals and work, and the unusually intelligent and capable staff working under her direction, that Barnard has assumed its position as a leader in this new, enlightened policy of physical education.

A performance of the first American Opera ever written

THE REDSKINS BETRAYED

Characters

Captain John Smith . G. TENNEY
Pocahontas . . . L. CORES
Big-Chief-Pokatau . . . . . B. ADAMS

With the assistance of the Pitching-Plate Tribe and special chorus by
D. CROOK, N. GABRILOWITSCH, R. HEITZMAN

The Opera Itself

The first chorus reveals the predicament of Captain John Smith, fallen a prey to Indian ruthlessness in spite of his genteel and dashing array. The braves surround him, sharpening their tomahawks on their teeth, singing:

> Heap big tomahawk! Indian love you.
> Indian pick up a stick in the smoking room;
> Indian pick up a stone in the "Jungle"—
> Make it sharp with Mighty Spirit's aid.
> Indian get Johnny's scalp with tomahawk!

The terrified John pleads his cause by singing a heart-rending "Mammy Song." The Indians glower in disgust then fall asleep on each other's shoulders. Johnny retreats to the corner, when Big-Chief-Pokatau demands a fitting torture for Smith. Each warrior yowls his favorite torture. Soon the whole tribe takes up the mighty roar of "Rush-Rush."

The Indians form a ferocious line with tomahawks lifted high. Whimpering, Johnny crawls past the braves, receiving a resounding whack from each. Suddenly there appears the fair Pocahontas, daughter of the chieftain. Her voice floats like music to the ears of John, "He is so fair, so beautiful! He must not die! !" She flies past the monsters, her tribesmen, upsetting them on her way. When she reaches her light-skinned lover, she lifts him from the ground where the weakened savages are now reclining.

Alumnae at Barnard

Barnard College, with the co-operation of the Associate Alumnae, has been able to secure lecturers to speak on topics of general interest to the Alumnae. This Alumnae program, now in its second year, is part of a general movement for adult education carried on in Harvard, Michigan, Smith, and other leading colleges over the country.

Barnard's program for this year consists of four lectures: Modern Drama by Prof. George Odell, Today's Biology and Human Life by Prof. Henry Crampton, The Place of Music in Adult Education by Prof. John Erskine, and America's Responsibility in the Far Eastern Crisis by Prof. James T. Shotwell.

Opportunities for recreation are also offered to the Alumnae in the form of evening classes in dancing and other athletics.

One of the most direct contacts that Alumnae have with Barnard students comes through passing on to undergraduates their own experiences in special fields. Vocational Teas, at which Alumnae are guests, promote free discussion about after-college occupations between Alumnae and undergraduates. Alumnae holding positions related to international affairs have been especially helpful this year.

In return for the many opportunities that Barnard gives its Alumnae, the graduates have responded by bringing back new points of view and by assisting the college in a variety of ways. They have established the Student Loan and Barnard Camp Funds, and Reunion Classes make Anniversary Gifts to the college.

The Barnard Alumnae Bulletin, published every May and December, is another Alumnae project. Other publications are a series of picture cards of the college and a volume of Greek Games Lyrics, To the Gods of Hellas, published in 1930.

WHY

do more and more smokers say:

"I've changed to Chesterfield"

BECAUSE . . .

THEY'RE MILDER. It's the tobaccos! The mildest that money can buy. Ripened and sweetened in the sunshine . . . cured by the farmer . . . then aged for two years in wooden hogsheads.

THEY TASTE BETTER. These tobaccos are put together right. Rich aroma of Turkish and mellow sweetness of Domestic, blended and cross-blended to Chesterfield's own BETTER TASTE.

THEY'RE PURE. Everything that goes into Chesterfield is tested by expert chemists. The purest cigarette paper made, tasteless, odorless. Sanitary manufacture . . . no hands touch your Chesterfields. They're as pure as the water you drink!

THEY SATISFY. You break open a clean, tight-sealed package. You light up a well-filled cigarette. Yes, sir . . . you're going to like this cigarette! And right there is where many a smoker changes to Chesterfield. They Satisfy!

CONGRATULATIONS!

A YEARBOOK is more than a series of printed pages bound into a cover. It is the result of hours of anxious thought, and weeks of patient, persistent effort. Your staff has accepted and discharged a real responsibility, and we feel sure that you who turn these pages and re-live the events of the year just concluded will join us in congratulating them.

» In our capacity as publishers, it has been a privilege to be associated with the production of this book. Perhaps we catch some of the enthusiasm displayed by the staff, for in our hands a yearbook becomes a very personal matter.

» We are justly proud of the confidence placed in our ability to produce a book in keeping with the ideals of the school which sponsors it. We earnestly hope that this feeling of confidence will persist, and that it will be our privilege to place the facilities of our organization at the service of the yearbook staff at Barnard College through successive years.
